Yesterday afternoon the monthly priesthood and auxiliary association union meetings of the Ogden stake were held at the Weber academy, commencing at 2:30 o'clock. Presidents Stohl and Snow of the presidency of the Box Elder stake, with eight high counselors and bishops from that stake, as well as Presidents Stohl and Blackburn of the presidency of the Box Elder Stake Relief society, and six of their board members: Bishop Heber C. An interesting speaking and singing program was presented in the general assembly prior to adjournment for department work. Elder Ernest R. McKay delivered a short but very inspiring talk on the cost of immortality and eternal life and President Olean Stohl congratulated the workers upon their opportunity and willingness to serve in the master's cause. Mr. William S. Wright sang the solo, "Oh for a Further Walk With God," accompanied on the piano by his sister, Miss Alberta Wright, and Miss Melba Read sang, "These Songs My Mother Used to Sing," accompanied by Miss Olive Jones, on the piano and by Prof. Marcus Smith on the violin.

THE POMEROY WALNUT

When the late Norman Pomeroy discovered a new and distinct type of the Persian or English Walnut, he immediately realized he had found what horticulturists had been seeking for years—an English Walnut of sufficient hardness to thrive in the Northern States. But what he could not know was that his discovery marked the dawn of a new industry which one day would rival that of the peach and the apple for the time is not far distant when the farmers and walnut growers of this country will be in a position to supply from their own trees the entire 50,000,000 pounds of walnuts which are consumed here yearly, 27,000,000 pounds of which it is now necessary to import from the groves of Europe. One can readily realize the importance of this growing industry when it is known that notwithstanding the fact that the United States and Canada are considered the greatest apple-growing countries in the world, nevertheless the annual importation of English Walnuts exceeds, in money value, exportation of apples from both the United States and Canada combined. This condition will soon be a thing of the past. With these facts in mind growers of trees all over the land are beginning to plant English Walnut trees, not one or two here and two or three there, but acres of them, utilizing every foot of ground that they can possibly spare. Pomeroy, so thoroughly realizes that this is the one opportunity moment to launch extensively into this industry that he has bought a farm in the foothills of the Berkshires where he has planted acres of trees, notwithstanding the fact that the thermometer often falls twenty degrees below zero in this region. Mr. Pomeroy is quite satisfied that his trees are hardy enough to withstand this climate owing to the fact that they have undergone fully as severe a test in Western New York where peaches and grapes growing in proximity to the walnuts have been frozen and the walnuts have suffered not at all.

Mr. Pomeroy after making an extensive trip through the California groves and comparing the varieties, yield and conditions with his own trees was convinced that there was just as great a future for the Eastern as for the Western grower of this nut, a conviction that was heartily endorsed by a physician from California who visited the Pomeroy farm and who declared that the trees were the most beautiful that he had ever seen, that their hardiness, and that the nut's flavor exceeded that of any nut he had ever tasted. The visitor was also astonished at the wonderful crop which was at that time hanging on the trees. For professional and business men as well as farmers an English walnut grove should prove a most profitable investment, as the constantly growing demand for this most valuable and delicious of nuts, is causing a consequent rise in price year by year. Another point which makes a strong appeal to the man about to raise English Walnut trees as an investment is the fact that the trees are planted from forty to sixty feet apart, thus enabling the land between to be utilized for other small fruit trees and cultivated crops, and reducing proportionately the cost of cultivation. After the first few years when the trees are bearing they do not require cultivation as the top-roots extend to the sub soil moisture-drawing whatever nourishment is needed, and in this way prolonging life in the trees for centuries. In some parts of Europe there are English Walnut trees said to be a thousand years old and still bearing.

The English Walnut is not only a most profitable orchard tree but also the one of the most valuable ornamental trees known, being clean—practically free, and unusually beautiful, with its white bark and wide spreading branches of dark green foliage. Individual ornamental trees sometimes yield from $60 to $120 worth of nuts in a single year.—The Utah Farmer.

EARLY TO RISE.
The excitement of the biggest wheat crop he had ever grown led a farmer near Winfield, Kas., to rouse his men at 3 o'clock in the morning on the first day of the harvest.
One Ozark "hill billy," who had sought work in the Western wheat fields, tumbled out of bed at the farmer's call and was eagerly eating breakfast when his fellow-workmen appeared. After he had stowed away a quantity of hot cakes, four fried eggs and two cups of coffee, he arose from the table and grabbed his suitcase. The farmer caught the gleam of the wonderlust in his eye.

"Look here," he said, in alarm, "where are you startin' to?"
The "hill billy" did not stop, but called back over his shoulder.

THESE HUSKY WELLESLEY COLLEGE GIRLS PICKED TO WIN RACE

The Wellesley sophomore crew.

There is considerable speculation among sporting enthusiasts who follow the activities of the gentler sex in athletics, as to which crew will return the winner this year in the Wellesley annual spring rowing competition in which the four classes will compete and which will be held on Lake Waban May 28. The sophomore crew which last year rowed such a splendid race is not without its backers and it is believed this crew has a good chance of lowering the record of last year. Speed at Wellesley does not always win the race, for it counts only 40 per cent, while form and efficiency win 30 points each.
